MY JOURNEY

I began my path studying NLP, psychology, hypnotherapy, reverse therapy and spiritism, working closely with high-net-worth individuals and well-known personalities. The work was valuable, but I noticed a pattern: large fees often came with a listening that wasn't deep enough to create real, lasting change.

So I shifted.

I went to the places where the stakes were real — working with children, and for the past five years, with the homeless and those in addiction. It pushed me to my edge. It taught me humility. It demanded that I walk a mile in someone else's shoes before guiding them.

That chapter tested everything I believed about healing, humanity and myself.

What it gave me was authenticity — the ability to hold space with love, to listen without judgement, and to help people find freedom when they feel most lost.

Now, another evolution.

Human Design found me exactly when my friends began turning to me — not for success, money or achievement — but for meaning, alignment and the parts of themselves they lost along the way.

I realised something simple and universal:

Every human being is searching for the same thing — to be seen, loved, and deeply heard.

When that happens, movement becomes possible again.

This is the work I am stepping into now — integrating everything I've lived, learned and survived — to help people return to clarity, authenticity and power.
